

faculty of NATIVE STUDIES

Native Studies Welcomes You to Its Winter Term 2010 Courses

Native Studies courses explain Aboriginal experiences and interests, and how they affect the lives of all Canadians in terms of such issues as Aboriginal identity and history, land claims, oil, gas and other natural resource extraction, land and water use, health care, and life in Canada's cities.

Native Studies courses will help you to understand the complexity of Canada, and to succeed in your future career as you work with Aboriginal clients, patients, students, customers, suppliers and partners.

Native Studies invites all students-Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal--to register for any of the following courses offered in Winter Term, 2010:

NS 200 - Aboriginal Canada: Looking Forward/Looking Back

MWF 9-9:50 AM Prerequisites: none

This course is particularly designed for students from outside the Faculty of Native Studies

NS 211 - Native Issues and Insights II

TR 9:30-10:50 AM Prerequisites: none

NS 260 - Contemporary Native Art

Thur 6-9 PM Prerequisites: none

NS 380 - Aboriginal Women

Tues 9:30 AM-12:20 PM Prerequisites: NS 210 and NS 211 or Consent

NS 390 - Research Methods in Native Studies

TR 12:30-1:50 PM Prerequisites: NS 210, NS 211 and one 300-level NS course or Consent

NS 440 - Indigenous Treaties and Agreements

MWF 10-10:50 AM Prerequisites: one 300-level NS course or Consent

NS 476 - Perspectives on Aboriginal Health and Well-Being

TR 9:30-10:50 AM Prerequisites: one 300-level NS course or Consent

NS 485 - Urban Aboriginal Issues and Identities

TR 2-3:20 PM Prerequisites: one 300-level NS course or Consent

For information concerning these courses, please contact nativestudies@ualberta.ca or (780) 492-2991