Health law is a complex field shaped by multiple legal sources, including constitutional law, statutory law, common law, and regulatory frameworks. Given the layered nature of these legal sources, there are both commonalities and differences in how health law is applied across provinces. This symposium aims to explore the shared principles and key differences in health law across Canada by engaging with experts in health law and health ethics.

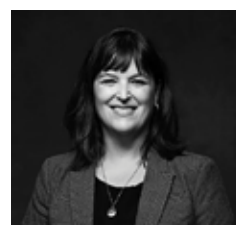

SPEAKERS:

Justice Tracey M. Bailey
Alberta Court of Justice

Lisa Spiegel, KC
Partner, Miller Thomson LLP

Karen N. Bennett-Clayton, KC
Partner, Stewart McKelvey
