

Raised in Portugal and earning her Bachelor of Science in Nursing from Escola Superior de Enfermagem de Lisboa, Ismália De Sousa aims to address health inequities in stroke care. Her research in the School of Nursing at the University of British Columbia works directly with young women and underrepresented stroke survivors, learning from their experiences in the healthcare system to improve patient care and outcomes. A champion of change, De Sousa is involved in various committees dedicated to improving equity, diversity, and justice in healthcare.
