

Overview

Summit Family Medicine is located in St. Albert, a nearby city about a 30-minute drive from the University area in central Edmonton. The clinic is made up of six family doctors, several supportive staff members, and is part of a primary care network with access to allied health care providers who are available to collaborate for patient care. Each doctor has a slightly different practice that provides residents with well-rounded exposure to a large variety of patients and presentations within the clinic. Residents receive excellent exposure to palliative care, transgender medicine, procedures, injections, maternity and newborn care, women's health, peds, and complex patients by working with different doctors. One of the doctors does low risk obstetrics and deliveries at the Sturgeon Community Hospital which is located across the street from the clinic. Residents have been able to join in for some deliveries and maternity/newborn visits in addition to their regular weekly PCN maternity clinic and call shifts. There are also a few doctors at the clinic who care for palliative patients at a local hospice on a rotating basis.

Learning Opportunities

- Full scope family medicine
- Additional opportunities to participate in maternity and newborn health
- Opportunities to work in palliative care (Foyer Lacombe Hospice)
- Procedures: IUDs, circumcisions, biopsies, nail wedge resections
- Integrated PCN staff: Pharmacist, Mental Health Nurse, Chronic Disease Nurse

Preceptors

Dr. Samantha Horvey (lead preceptor, palliative)

Dr. Ben Macedo (lead preceptor, LTC, palliative)

Dr. Margaret Schaffer (maternity care)

Dr. Peter Newnham (LTC, palliative)

Dr. Lauren Eastman

Dr. Jennifer Yue

