MESSAGE FROM THE DEPARTMENT CHAIR

2011 was a watershed year for the Department of Family Medicine. On the education front, we went through a very encouraging accreditation process, receiving the category of Full Approval from the College of Family Physicians of Canada.

As for research, we made a quantum leap by obtaining long-term funding through the Campus Alberta Innovates Program, which will anchor us for many years as we set about organizing a province-wide Practice-Based Research Network (PBRN) under the guidance of Dr. Lee Green.

We were fortunate to fill our Endowed Chair in Primary Care Research with the recruitment of Dr. Neil Drummond. Our next recruitments will be for clinician researchers, as well as to an Endowed Chair in Health Informatics.

While the PBRN will help us keep our ear to the ground in the areas of clinical and health services research, we will continue to build strength in research in medical education. In this report, you will see reference to our first major paper on the Competency-Based Achievement System (CBAS), and a number more are in the pipeline for 2012. CBAS has now been picked up by a number of Canadian departments of family medicine, as well as some in the United States. This is a remarkable spinoff for our education researchers

Elsewhere in this year's report you will see citations for our Tools for Practice series, which is one of the most popular knowledge translation initiatives underway in Canada. Tools for Practice is released online by the Alberta College of Family Physicians, and is seen in print on a monthly basis in Canadian Family Physician.

While we all take great pride in the Department's research productivity, we also know that it would have not been possible without the cornucopia of support that we receive. In particular, we are indebted to Alberta Health, and Alberta Health Services, both of whom are our partners on many different levels, but most especially with our AARP. The Alberta Medical Association continues its unstinting support of primary care in Alberta. The Alberta College of Family Physicians has never let us down, nor has the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Alberta, who are now partnering with us as CBAS goes into the practice community. Finally, the Section of Researchers of the College of Family Physicians of Canada and the North American Primary Care Research Group provide a collegial home for all our researchers. To all of you, our deepest thanks.

G. Richard Spooner, MD, CCFP, FCFP
Professor and Chair

INTRODUCTION BY THE RESEARCH DIRECTOR

It was through the Department of Family Medicine's Academic Alternative Relationships Plan (AARP) that we were able to adopt and implement new concepts, innovations and technology aimed to improve academic family medicine. This in turn improves the practice of medicine through translation, exchange and implementation of the knowledge and innovations developed within our Department. Dr. G. Richard Spooner, through his chairmanship, shepherded in our AARP, which in turn enabled our academic members to develop better ideas and ways of doing things at a clinical, educational and research level. Dr. Spooner has left a legacy that will continue on.

This has been a busy year for our researchers. We have obtained eleven peer-reviewed grants and eight non-peer reviewed grants. In addition, 47 non-funded and 52 grant-funded projects were ongoing. There have been 57 publications in peer-reviewed journals, and numerous presentations. In this report, you can read about the meaningful contributions to research that we have made on health services, medical education, evidence-based medicine, care of the elderly and disadvantaged populations in primary care.

Discussions are underway to develop a provincial-wide primary care research network. This network may be linked with the two provincial primary care networks that are presently contributing data to the Canadian Primary Care Sentinel Surveillance Network (CPCSSN, see <http://www.cpcssn.ca/cpcssn/home-e.asp>). The CPCSSN collaborates with 10 PBRNs across Canada collecting anonymized data from electronic medical records (EMRs) at regular intervals to develop a national longitudinal database for primary care surveillance and research. The CPCSSN integrates data from 10 different EMR systems and focuses on 8 chronic diseases: COPD, depression, diabetes, hypertension, osteoarthritis, epilepsy, dementia and Parkinson's. The CPCSSN project provides a resource for researchers, clinicians and policy makers to collaborate on local, regional and national projects.

With the pending epidemic of chronic disease, our researchers are actively exploring how to best approach chronic disease management, prevention and screening in the primary care setting, including how to improve care provided to disadvantaged populations. You can read about the numerous projects on chronic disease management, prevention and screening, including: chronic lung disease, cardiovascular disease, diabetes, dementia, cancer, mental illness, multi-morbidity and the good work being done on disadvantaged populations and access to care.

Our medical education research includes numerous projects such as: career choice, rural practice, narrative reflection, critical thinking, addiction knowledge and attitudes, including surveys of family medicine graduates, to name a few. Under the lead of our medical education researcher, we have developed and are evaluating an innovative competency-based assessment framework.

Our resident research curriculum prepares our residents to become lifelong learners and critical thinkers. Each resident is required to complete two practice audits (PQI - practice quality improvement project), one each year of residency. In this report you can peruse the range of PQI topics from our second year residents.

Our research centres include the Medically At-Risk Drivers (MARD) Centre and the Centre for the Cross-Cultural Study of Health and Healing (CCSHH). MARD continues to seek solutions to address the ever-increasing problem of medically at risk drivers. The CCSHH is exploring the cultural issues in healthcare and diversity training.

We hope you enjoy reading our annual report!

BEARS PROJECTS (1st Year Residents)

The ability to critically appraise the literature is deemed to be an essential skill required of all family physicians. In the Family Medicine Residency Program, all first year residents are required to conduct several Brief Evidence-Based Assessments of Research (BEAR). During 2010/2011, residents completed 243 BEARS projects.
