MESSAGE FROM THE DEPARTMENT CHAIR

This year's annual report is impressive (again) for the numbers of publications, presentations, grants, and other scholarly work it reflects. What I think is much more important than the quantity though is the kind of scholarship. The common thread that runs through them all is community. Our researchers are engaged with the patient, practice, and policy communities, doing research that matters directly to the people it affects. The Department's research program is outward-facing. That is often difficult work, time-consuming, requiring the patience and the commitment and caring to build the relationships upon which true partnership rests. It is those partnerships that direct us, that insure that the work we do is what the community needs done. Our skills as researchers can insure that our work is done well, but only our partners can insure that it is done right.

*Dr. Lee Green, Professor and Chair
Department of Family Medicine
Faculty of Medicine & Dentistry*

MISSION:

To promote, support, create and disseminate research knowledge and scholarly activity in the discipline of family medicine, increase research capacity in the Department of Family Medicine, and enhance the research skills of faculty members, residents and students.

VALUES:

- Excellence and quality in research and scholarly activity;
- Interdisciplinary collaboration on research projects;
- Highest ethical standards in the conduct of research projects; and
- The diversity of generalist family practice

INTRODUCTION BY THE RESEARCH DIRECTOR

When you read through our research report, you will be struck by the breadth of our scholarly activity. Our areas of research are comprehensive and reflect the “generalist’s wheel of knowledge”. This report contains medical education research, clinical research, health services research, translational health research, epidemiological and population health research, and includes research on specific populations such as vulnerable and elderly patients. You will see outputs from research networks including the pragmatic trials collaborative and the networks contributing to the Canadian Primary Care Sentinel Surveillance Network. You will find evidence of interdisciplinary research both in the researchers and clinicians on the research teams. Our eclectic approach to research also includes research informed by implementation and quality improvement science. Our researchers engage stakeholders, including patients, clinicians, policy and decision makers. Our research identifies and addresses the gaps in our system. In the ‘other Media’ section, you will see synthesized evidence that can be applied into practice including, tools for practice, podcasts and internet resources such as a list of services to assist our elderly patients with mobility and independence. Dr. McDonald’s research is an excellent example of how research can inform policy through evaluating the value of services and cost effectiveness. You will also find examples of models of care that improve health through effective prevention and screening. Our comprehensive approach and engagement of key stakeholders combined with new research approaches informs and transforms primary care.
