He also noted that June 24 was Saint-Jean-Baptiste Day known in English as St John the Baptist Day, a day celebrated in Quebec and by French Canadians across Canada.

The Chair spoke about the province’s public health restrictions related to COVID-19 and noted that the premier announced earlier in the month that some public health restrictions would be lifted faster than originally anticipated due to the slowing rate of infection and active participation of communities across Alberta in COVID-19 prevention strategies. He also noted that the university would continue to follow updated public health measures as they were announced by the Chief Medical Officer of Health.

University Registrar, Melissa Padfield gave an update on Faculty applications for exceptions to remote learning for fall 2020. She noted that communication of the results had been sent to the Deans and that communications would be sent out to students soon as well.

- the specifics of the communication plans to inform students of in person course offerings;
- guidelines for in person office hours for instructors;
- that the university encouraged staff to continue to work from home wherever possible; and
- what other universities in Canada were doing regarding in person and remote learning for the fall 2020 term.
