He noted that in advance of the meeting, the Secretary to GFC had reached out to returning members of APC to ask if they would consider taking on the role. Jelena Holovati is returning for her final year of service to APC and has agreed to take on the role. The Chair asked if there were any additional nominees and noted that according to the APC terms of reference, nominees should be an academic staff member who is a member of GFC.

DISCUSSION ITEMS

11. Restructuring in the Faculty of Education

Presenter(s): Jennifer Tupper, Dean of the Faculty of Education; Lynn McGarvey, Vice-Dean of the Faculty of Education

Purpose of the Proposal: The proposal is before the committee to provide a briefing on changes to the Faculty of Education department structure that were recently approved by the Education Faculty Council and will be coming before APC for recommendation to the Board.

Discussion:
Dean Tupper noted that the discussions on the item began last year but were also built into the Faculty Strategic plan and that in the current budget situation, the Faculty wanted to lead the process and make its own decisions on a new structure. Vice-Dean Lynn McGarvey made a presentation on the current structure of the faculty, the rationale for making changes, the feedback received throughout the process, and the vision for change.
Committee members asked questions about the consultation of students and their participation on the Faculty Council when the motion to recommend on the proposal was approved. The Dean detailed consultation with students throughout the process including through online town halls and explained the proposed changes do not have any impact on programs. She further noted that the selection of the students to sit on Faculty Council typically takes place after the first meeting has taken place and that one graduate student representative did attend and vote by error.

Members asked about potential gains from the changes especially increasing collaboration and streamlining decision-making. The Dean responded that the need for change predated the budget cuts and pointed to calls to break down silos within the Faculty. She reiterated the vision to increase collaboration and fluidity within the faculty and spoke to proposed changes to decision-making structures, including for program changes and approvals, especially at the course-level.

Members also asked about the creation of pods, whether they would be branded, if they were analogous to schools, and about the responsibilities to be given to the leadership roles who will function effectively as Chairs. The Dean responded that while many of the changes are still being discussed, the intention is to have pieces in place for a July 1, 2022 implementation date. This includes finding individuals who can fill those roles and continue the very collaborative process to implement a new model. The work to better understand the work of the department chairs and consultations on how to transition those responsibilities to two new leadership roles has already begun. There are already several schools within the Faculty.

Members asked about the Faculty Council motion and whether, in the opinion of the proponents, the decision-making had been fair and transparent. The proponents expressed their opinion that it had been and gave information about the motion presented to the Faculty Council.

Members asked about the change management process and the vote at the Faculty Council and the plans for governance and decision making, especially given that the vote was so close. The Dean noted that the Faculty Council's decision does reflect the transformative change that is happening in the Faculty of Education, and that such a transformative change has not been recorded since 1994. The Dean also spoke to some of the mechanisms that the leadership team is looking for to support change management, especially the work of champions within the Faculty and the need for metrics on implementation.

Members expressed support for the courage of the Faculty and wondered about how the pod compositions will be created. The Dean noted that the changes do not change the fact that faculty and students belong to the Faculty of Education and the creation of pods should support increased collaboration which is an overall aim of the proposal. In response to some members expressed concerns related to the lack of definite plans for implementation, the Dean assured members that this could be explained by the nature of the change process which would continue to be consultative and to require collaboration to develop and implement.

In closing, the Chair reminded members they would be asked to recommend to GFC on the restructuring and that the final decision will lay with the Board.

8. 2022-2023 Exceptional Tuition Increase

Materials before members are contained in the official meeting file.

Presenter(s): Melissa Padfield, Vice-Provost and Registrar, Office of the Registrar, Steven Dew; Provost & Vice-President (Academic), and Todd Gilchrist, Vice-President (University Services and Finance)

Purpose of the Proposal: The proposal is before the committee to provide a briefing on the exceptional tuition increase proposals that will come before the committee in early October for recommendation to the Board

Discussion:
Dr Dew began by providing an overview of the decision-making process for setting tuition and the call for Exceptional Tuition Increase (ETI) Proposals from the Minister the past Spring. The Chair noted that these proposals were discussed by APC in April 2021 and that the final proposals are still being developed by the faculties who are gathering input from students.

Members asked questions about how the programs were chosen and the process to develop them expressing concerns that student consultation had not been meaningful. The Provost provided details on the timelines from Spring 2021 that had led to consultation during a particularly busy time of the academic year. The most recent round of consultation included more diverse approaches in the Faculties with senior faculty leaders being highly engaged in the process.

Members noted that students consulted will not be impacted by the changes, and that they will ultimately touch students who will begin their programs in the 2022 academic year and that because of approval timelines, some applicants may not have all the information when they apply on October 1. The Provost and the Registrar explained plans to inform applicants and that ministerial approval would be obtained at the earliest in December.

9. Growth Strategy – Open Session

Presenter(s): Steven Dew, Provost and Vice-President (Academic), and Chair of APC

Purpose of the Proposal: The proposal is before the committee to provide information about strategies that the institution is engaged in to facilitate growth.

Discussion: The Chair began by explaining his request to move the Committee into closed session noting the need to keep information on enrolment management confidential and the need to inform APC now, before the information can be widely shared.

The Chair moved the meeting into closed session.
