St. Stephen’s College
Remote Library Access Re-Instated, and
Ventilation Upgrades on St. Stephen’s College Campus
24 January 2021

To: All St. Stephen’s College Faculty, Staff, and Students

Regarding: Remote Library Access and Ventilation Upgrades

In conjunction with the broader University of Alberta campus, the St. Stephen’s College building will remain closed until February 27, 2022, with the expectation of re-opening on February 28 (barring any further alterations). All St. Stephen’s staff and faculty will continue to work remotely. Students who wish to come to campus for research purposes are able to do so by appointment.

Given this prolonged period of remote work, the University of Alberta Library has again granted off-campus access for St. Stephen’s faculty and students to use the e-collections of the library. This access is on a temporary basis and will stay in effect until the UAlberta libraries are again opened to the public (currently planned for February 28, 2022). St. Stephen’s faculty and students are able to access the e-resources of the library using their CCID.

Finally, after several months of consultation and review, upgrades are now complete to the College’s ventilation/air exchange system. Classrooms and common spaces now have air exchange and purification that meets the recommendations for COVID-19 safety. More information can be found at our Campus Health and Safety Measures page. These upgrades together with the many other measures we have in place on campus will help to ensure greater health and safety when we again can gather in person.

With thanks,
